

University of North Alabama, University of South Alabama, and the University of West Alabama.

The mandated function of each of the public universities of Alabama is to provide education to its clients. The universities are some of the agencies responsible for performing the Client Services function of Alabama government.

In the performance of their mandated function, the universities may engage in the following subfunctions.

Each university has requirements that must be met for a student to be accepted for enrollment at the university. Students apply to the university, and the university verifies the application materials and decides to accept or deny the application. Some accepted applicants may be placed on probation until certain criteria are met. Failure to meet these criteria may result in the student losing his/her acceptance to the university. Each university has other policies governing students, including their academic requirements, that when broken, may result in the students being disciplined and/or expelled. These expulsions may be appealed, in some instances, to the university's discipline oversight committee.

Teaching is the primary activity of this subfunction, which is the direct link between the university and the individual student, and is the process that all other education activities support. Universities also use internships to convey knowledge. Other areas under this subfunction include those that support the learning process, e.g., university libraries, museums, archives, and learning centers.

participate in sports, to explore personal interests and possible future professions through clubs and organizations, and to experience the democratic process through school elections. The universities also offer career and educational guidance.

Universities coordinate campus safety. These activities may include, offices or facilities; providing for security and/or insurance for property; and assigning, inspecting, and maintaining university property, including vehicles.

The

_____ The Archives Division recommends the following records as permanent.

These records are summary documentation of the recruitment process and are necessary to document the activities of this subfunction.

These records document policy and rule development by the university, proposals, and required reporting by the departments and committees to the board. These records may include meeting agendas, minutes, reports, and proposals, as well as documentation of the award of honorary degrees and citations.

These records, which may include minutes and recommendations, are necessary to document policy and rule development by the university.

These records are created by committees other than university-wide standing committees, also known as “ad hoc committees,” such as those formed to create or examine policies affecting university students, faculty, and staff. They are necessary to document policy and rule development by the university.

These records, which do not include routine correspondence, document the policies and actions of the universities.

These records, which include staff manuals, document the guidelines, policies, and procedures of the universities.

These records document accreditation reviews by accrediting agencies and are necessary for use in future revCH7 (e)m10 (w)4 (s)-1 (a)4 (n (i)- (ur)3 (e)4 ()-u)4 (s)-1 (efnd r)3 (ul)3 (y t)-2reseat-2 (c)po universit.

These documents provide a record of gifts given to the institution by senior classes. These documents may include, but are not limited to, gift lists, gift histories, record of gift placement arrangements, and related documentation.

Documents related to gifts and bequests including copies of wills, copies of deeds and titles, maps and surveys (if applicable), and records of establishment of and use of monies generated by trust fund or endowment.

The following financial records are required to be kept permanently for historical and accounting purposes: tuition and fee schedules, university budgets, annual endowment fund reports, charts of accounts, general ledgers, annual financial statements, and annual payroll earnings records. Other financial records are listed separately and have temporary retention requirements.

The university budget is the official final budget for the university for the fiscal/academic year. It is necessary to document the budget the university worked under for a given year.

These reports are created at the end of a grant project as required by the grantor. The reports are necessary to document the activities and results of grant projects.

These records document the university's process of searching for and selecting candidates for president/chancellor.

Under the Code of Alabama 1975 § 41-13-21, “no state officer or agency head shall cause any state record to be destroyed or otherwise disposed of without first obtaining approval of the State Records Commission.” This Records Disposition Authority constitutes authorization by the State Records Commission for the disposition of the records of the Agency as stipulated in this document.

One condition of this authorization is that the Agency submit an annual Records Disposition Authority (RDA) Implementation Report on its activities, including documentation of records destruction, to the State Records Commission.

In addition, the Agency should make every effort to establish and maintain a quality record-keeping program by conducting the following activities:

The Agency should designate a staff member in a managerial position as its records liaison/records manager, who is responsible for: ensuring the development of quality record keeping systems that meet the business and legal needs of the agency, coordinating the transfer and destruction of records, ensuring that permanent records held on alternative storage media (such as microforms and digital imaging systems) are maintained in compliance with national and state standards, and ensuring the regular implementation of the agency’s approved RDA.

Permanent records in the Agency’s custody should be maintained under proper intellectual control and in an environment that will ensure their physical order and preservation.

Destruction of temporary records, as authorized in this RDA, should occur agency-wide on a regular basis – for example, after the successful completion of an audit, at the end of an administration, or at the end of a fiscal year. Despite the RDA’s provisions, no record should be destroyed that is necessary to comply with requirements of the Open Meetings Act, audit requirements, or any legal notice or subpoena.

The agency should maintain full documentation of any computerized record-keeping system it employs. It should develop procedures for: (1) backing up all permanent records held in electronic format; (2) storing a back-up copy off-site; and (3) migrating all permanent records when the system is upgraded or replaced. If the agency chooses to maintain permanent records solely in electronic format, it is committed to funding any system upgrades and migration strategies necessary to ensure the records’ permanent preservation and accessibility.

Electronic mail contains permanent, temporary, or transitory record information. Although e-mail records can be printed out, filed, and retained according to the RDA’s requirements, the office should preferably employ an electronic records management system capable of sorting e-mail into folders and archiving messages having long-term value.

The staff of the State Records Commission or the Examiners of Public Accounts may examine the condition of the permanent records maintained in the custody of the Agency and inspect records destruction documentation. Agency records managers and/or the ADAH archivists are available to instruct the staff in RDA implementation and otherwise assist the Agency in implementing its records management program.

The State Records Commission adopted this revision to the Records Disposition Authority on April 17, 2024.
